THE TRIALS OF J.C. HIGH

Jackson Center High School

Jackson Center, Ohio

1977

Come . . . Walk with us!
The Path of time has been stilled, Hushed . . .
You need only to glance backwards . . .
Hurry! The whispers begin!
Watch . . .
Listen . . .
You alone shall know the words!

Mad chemist at work! ...
Brenda Schilling

Studying? In study hall?

Welcome to the trials of Jackson Center High School. On this and the ensuing pages, our staff has compiled a list of the memorable "crimes" committed during the '76-'77 school year. We have provided you with the names of the suspects, incriminating evidence, and - but first things first. Every act must have a place of occurrence and our first priority is, of course, to establish the "scene of the crime."

SCENE OF THE CRIME

"You deserve a break today!" . . . elementary teachers at lunch.

"Mr. Bumble!"

"I just can't believe it!" . . . Bonnie Coleman.

Coming, coming, came . . . going, going gone.

Study halls, cafeterias, playgrounds - the "crimes" occurring in these places of frequent visitation are the time-honored ones of generations: thousands of spoons have lifted Tuesday's chili to thousands of mouths in the past, and seemingly were always to do so; millions of paper airplanes are perpetually flown through the "still, peaceful" atmosphere of study halls. The acts of transgression seldom change. Only the names and faces of the transgressors alter with the accumulation of years.

Time - years, months, days, hours flowing unhurriedly together causing accustomed actions and familiar places to blur together and become ordinary, even boring. Still, contemplation of time with the advantage of maturity will reveal memories and impressions of actions so individual and unique that we will be amazed we could ever have thought them mundane.

SCENE OF THE CRIME

"It's finger-lickin' good!" . . . Ken Spencer.

A glimpse into the future . . . Marilyn Heintz and Friend.

We gotcha! . . . Kevin Allison, Scott Callin.

School - branches to a better life.

Merle! It's only a joke!

The guys have competition! . . . Tammy Maxwell, Dean Wright.

School. A single symbolic word denoting many different things to many different people. Although many students thoroughly enjoy school while others do not, most would agree that school is a more than perfect setting for the "Scene of the Crime."

"My Excuse? I'm camera shy!"

What have you been up to? . . . Lori Ware.

A watched pot never boils . . . Rosemary Christler.

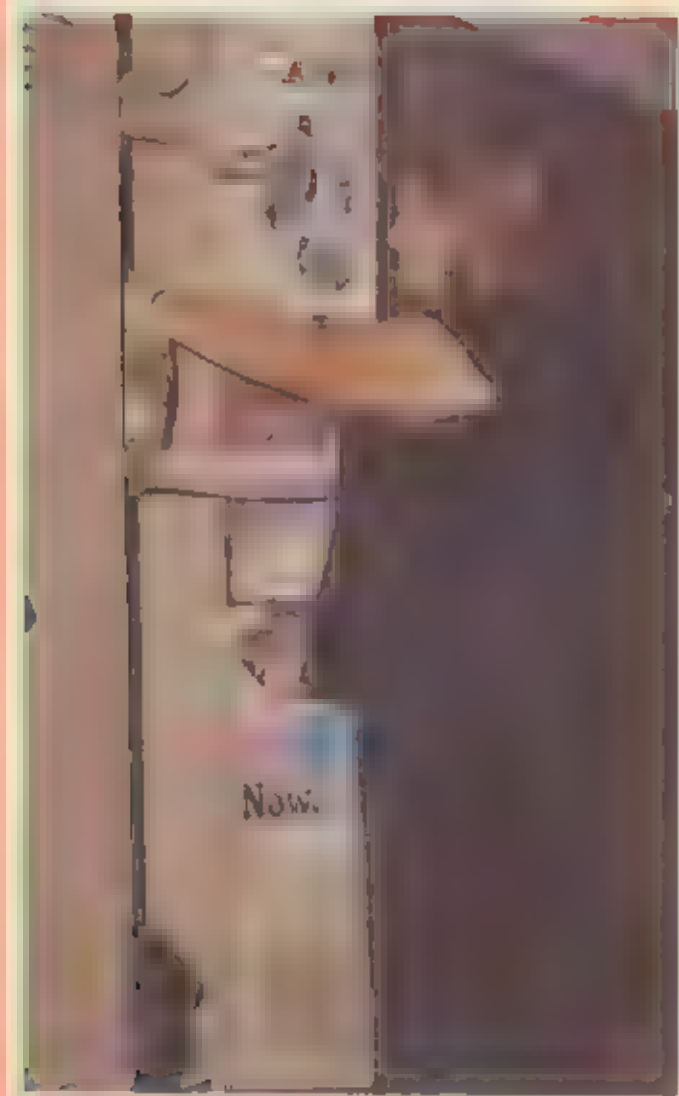

"We're all in our places with bright shiny faces!"

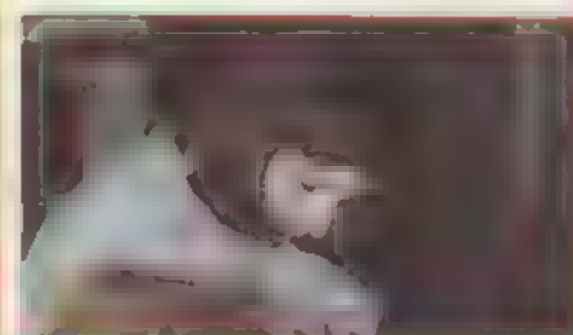

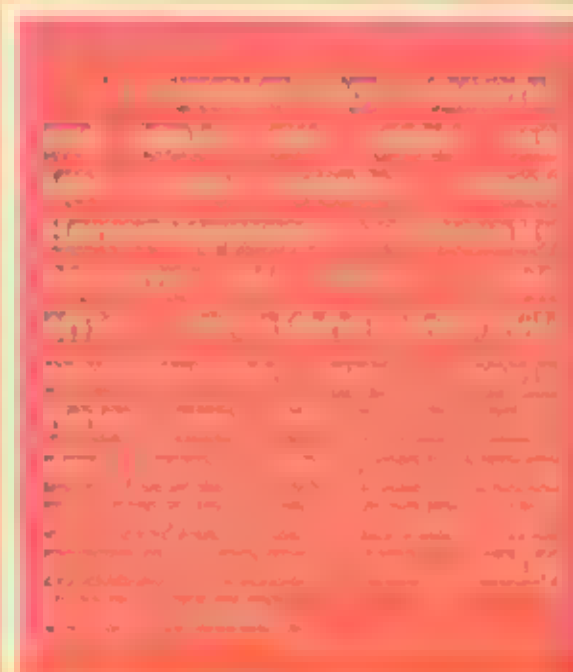

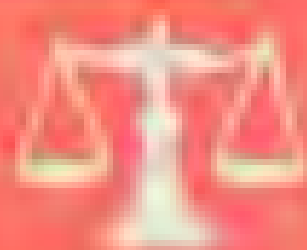

Many things typify mornings at Ja-Ce-Hi: Announcements by nervous members of speech class; A bracing cup of coffee in the teacher's lounge; Preparations for the day's lunch; First period art class; Waiting patiently (?) for the 8:00 bell to ring; and for those who find it hard to wake up, sleeping in first period study hall.

"Good morning. The janitor - What? Turn it on?" . . . Ray Klöpfenstein.

MORNING OF THE CRIME

"I told you it would burn!"
Steve Boyer, Fred Bodenmiller

"Hey Mom! School is fun!"
Cindy Gillman and friends

"You think that's funny?"
Dor Markey

Some mornings seem to find people in strange places: boys baking cookies in Home Ec., and two young "natives" in Child Development. Then we have those not in strange places just doing strange things: a girl sitting down to play volleyball? a human poop for the study hall bench! And finally we have one in a strange mood. Who knows what's going on behind that bored look?

"Somebody has to hold the desk up!"
Joe Smith

"Aw Shucks" Lee Parker

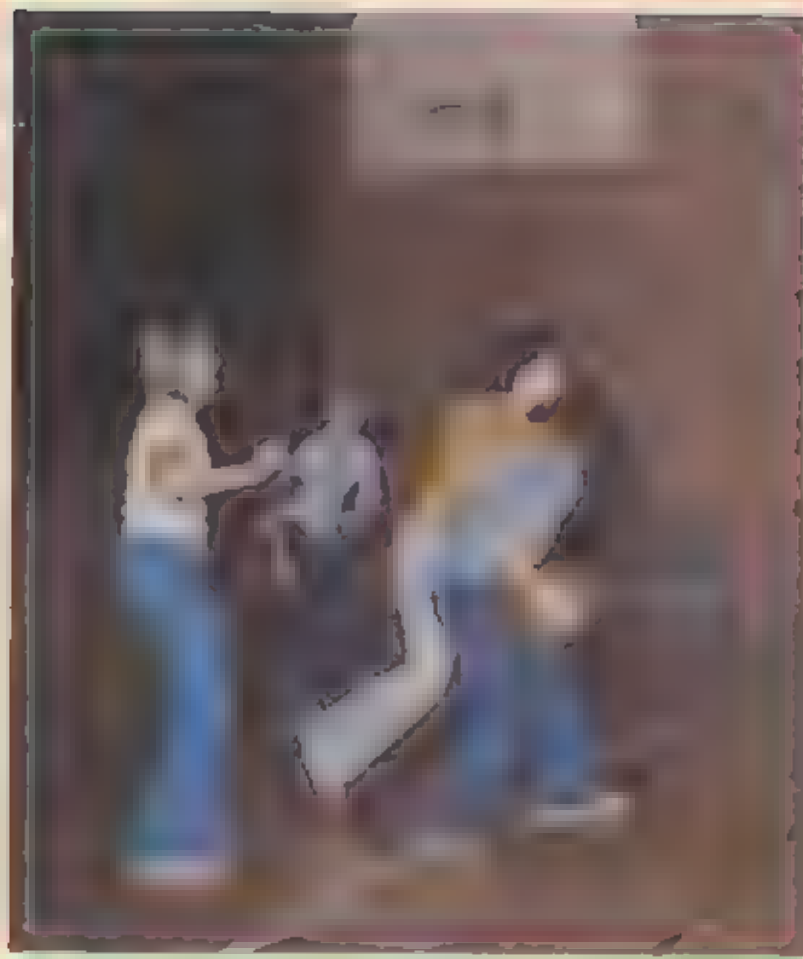

Some people are quite busy in the morning. Others appear to be taking it easy. And we can't forget our industrious students at the J.V.S., or our future high school students, now beginning their long journey on the road of education. All these things and many more are examples of morning happenings here at Ja-Ce-Hi.

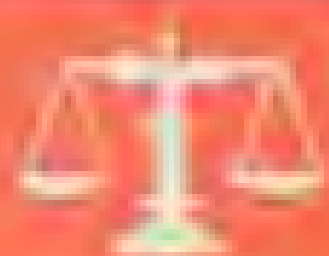

MORNING OF THE CRIME

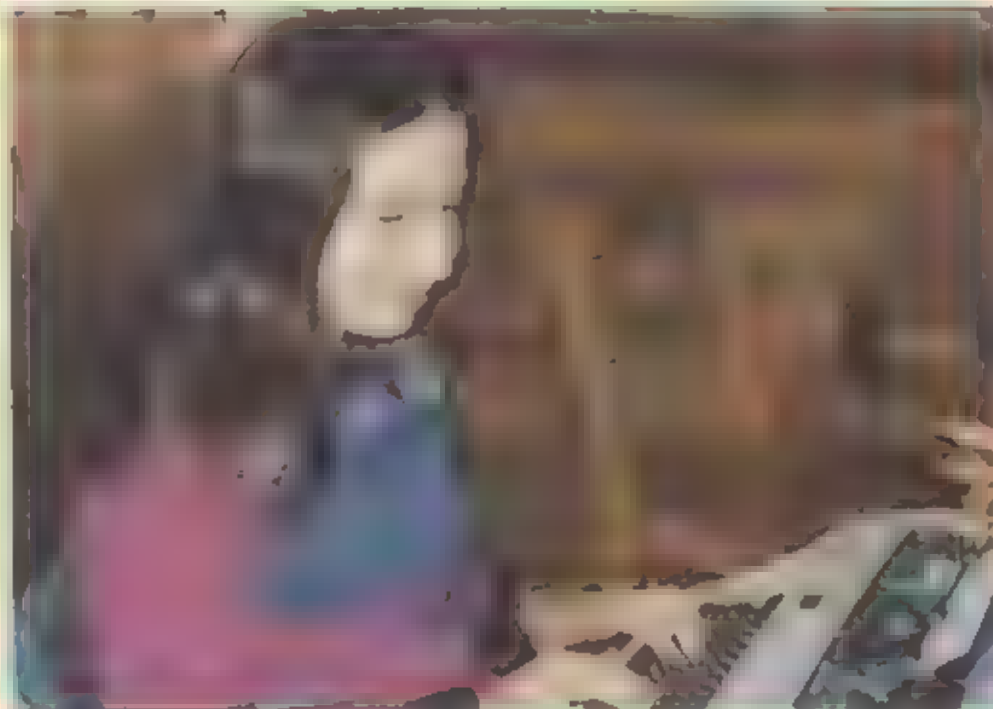

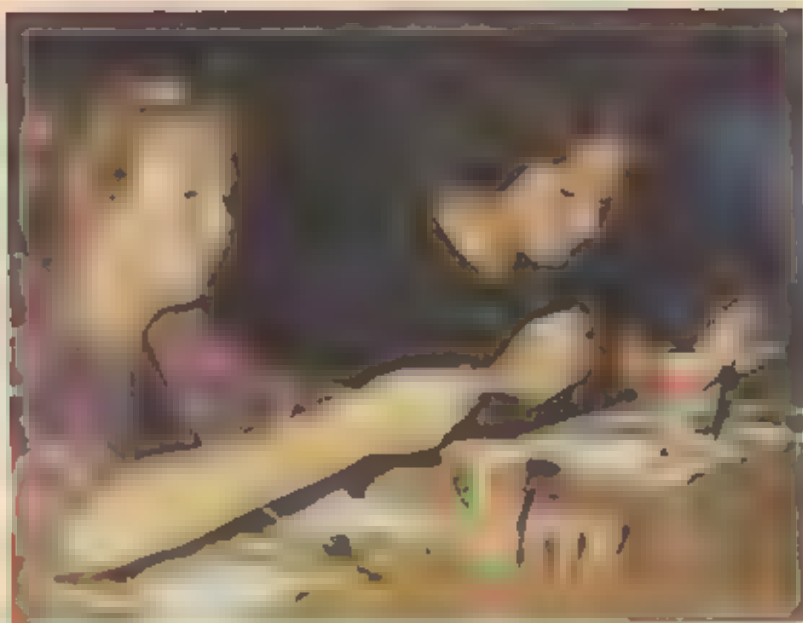

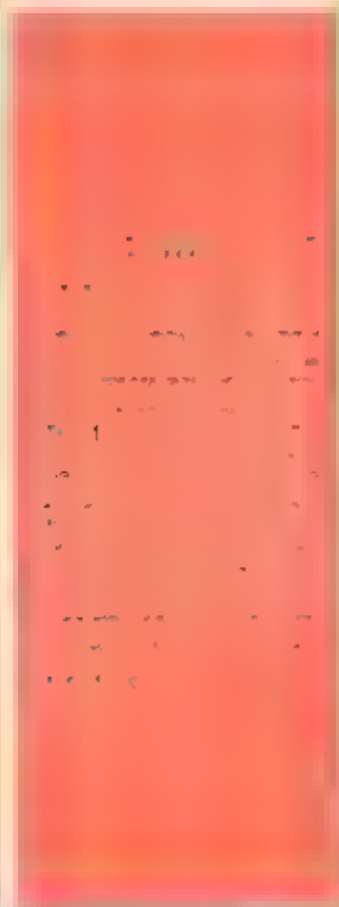

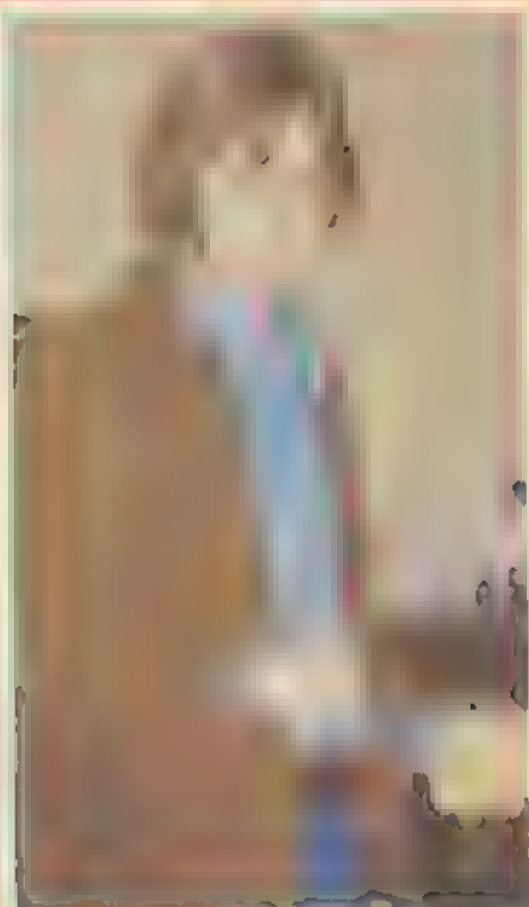

"Tell me a story"

AFTERNOON OF THE CRIME

Good times and laughter also typify the afternoons: junior high art classes, drinking (?) strange creatures in science, studying, messing around, and just laughing for the fun of it!

Good times and laughter also typify the afternoons: junior high art classes, drinking (?) strange creatures in science, studying, messing around, and just laughing for the fun of it!

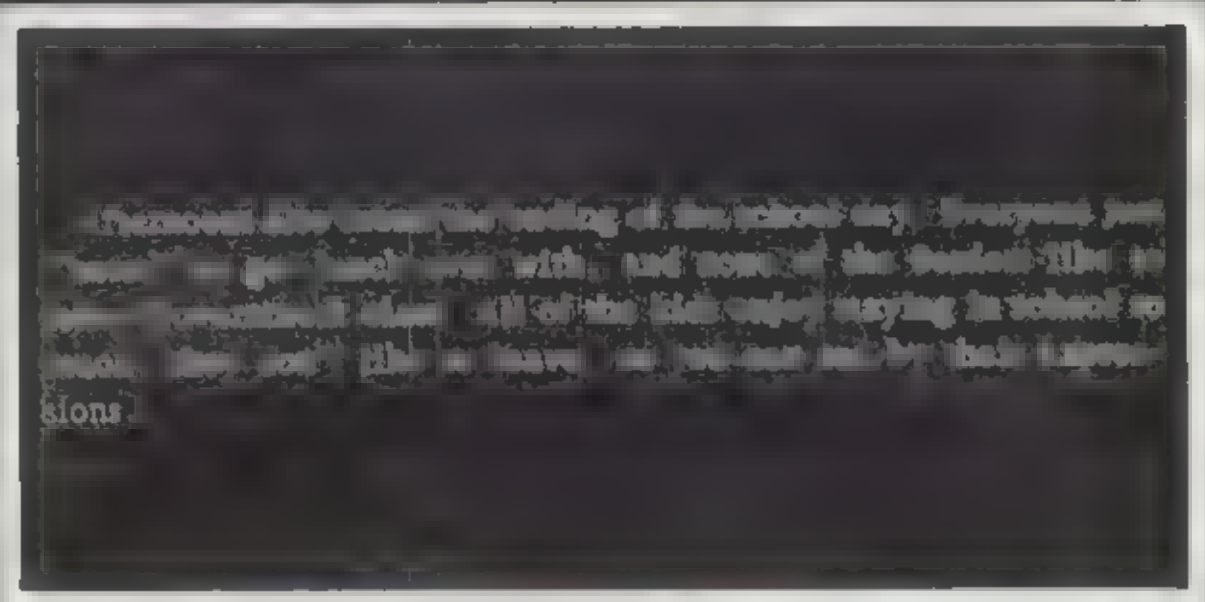

They wouldn't do that! John Homan, Mark Knief, Melny Brenner.

"You don't drink ketchup, Dummy!"

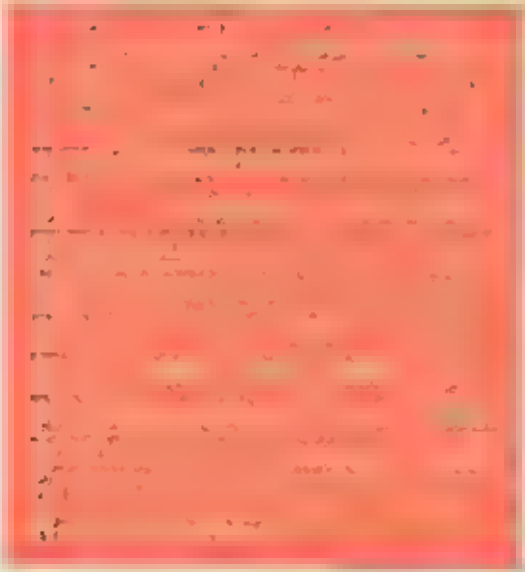

"Say it, don't spray it!" Ed's Roger Tange

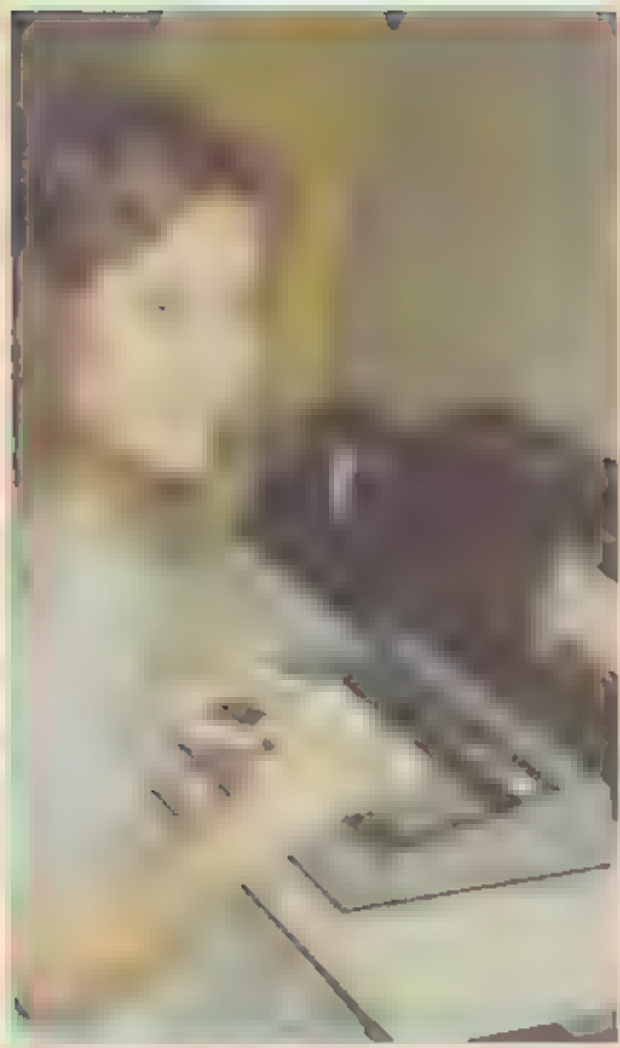

AFTERNOON OF THE CRIME

VICTIMS OF THE CRIME

GREATER THAN WORDS . . .
IS THE TRAGEDY OF VIOLENT DEATH.

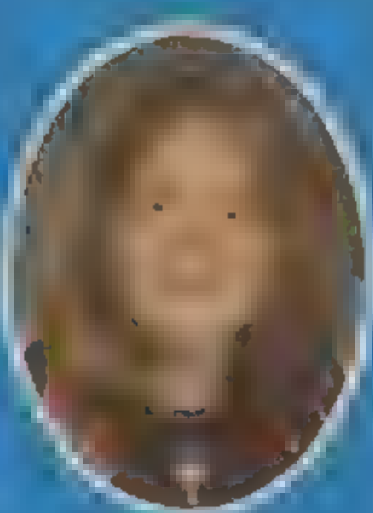

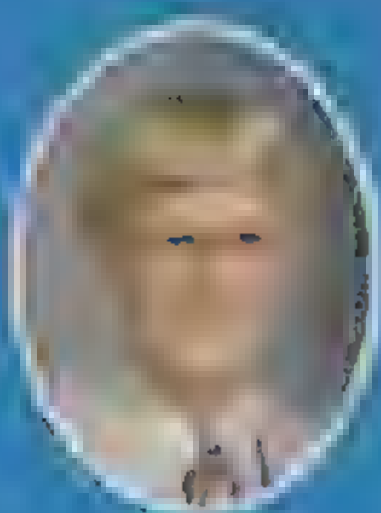

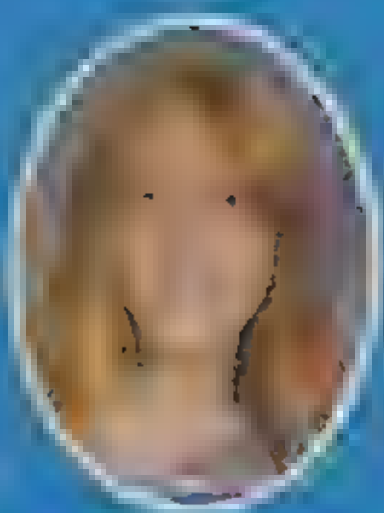

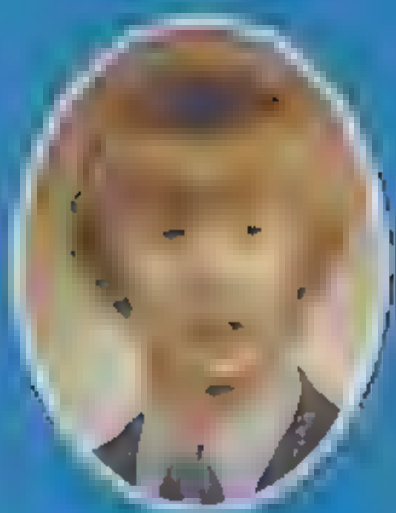

January 9, 1977. Raging fire extinguishes the lives of five Jackson Center residents, forcing us all to acknowledge the vulnerability of life. Perished are Betty, Brenda, and Julie Smith; David and Carrie Cowart.

October 22, 1976, 8:00 sharp. The curtain rises and fifteen performers begin to portray the native characters they had become in just four short weeks. Hearts thumping in nervous anticipation they gave a "humdinger" performance.

Those four weeks were filled with hours of exhausting practices, minutes of uneasy sleep, and years of fond memories. All the participants learned to appreciate the efforts of others and to value co-operation. Such a combination of easygoing compatibility produced spontaneous moments which helped to relieve tension. For their part, Ralph and the Ralphettes produced a spirited 50's number which left the cast in stitches. Gloria the "skunk," her "disappearing" acts and her "relieving" acts also added charm to the production.

ALL THINGS, each one of us looks primarily into the future but when looking into the future, we have to look back and see the road we have not been winding, with many ups and downs along the way.
Each new experience in life,
elementary school, high school
and high school helped to make me
the person that I am today.
Realizing that this will be true for the future too, but I'm not sure if I can specify what I am now for what I am becoming. As our movie states, somewhere though,
I know in my heart that I will accept the challenge of the unknown path lying before me,
and I will find the courage to become the better person.

CAUGHT IN THE ACT!

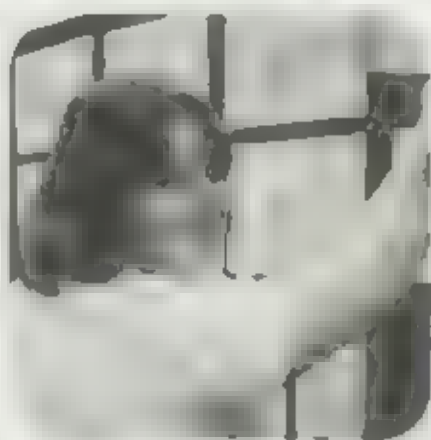

Being a senior is seeing the end of a long journey. It's a time to reflect on all the good times and wonder how we'll ever make it on our own. School has in a way kept us sheltered from the real world; now, as part of it, we must contribute to it. Mostly though, being a senior will mean to me, memories, friends, laughter, good times, wondering what's ahead and sharing all these things with people close to you. Amy Spencer

Being a junior is a lot of fun and hard work. You do many things with your class - working at basketball games (getting in free), planning for prom and for our class trip next year. A lot of the fun in doing something is making the plans for it . . . we get to do a lot of that.

We seem to be getting a lot more freedom as we get older. We can get by with things this year that we wouldn't even have thought of last year. I think of graduating - next year this class will graduate and a lot of my classmates will move away so that I will probably never see them again. This year and next, then, will be the last chances I shall have to really get to know my classmates. Ty Lotz

"Now don't get upset, Chief!"

Saturday evening, April 23, 1977, we were entertained by the Junior Class who presented the play GET SMART, adapted from the popular television series of the same name.

Jay Regula in the part of Maxwell Smart, the bumbling secret agent, spent much of his time in a trash can speaking on his "shoe phone." Mr. Big, portrayed by Ty Lotz, appeared suitably mean in his hairless state (thanks to a pink bathing cap).

The play was directed by Mr. Lacher, chemistry teacher at J.C.H.S. He was assisted by Sandy Zimpfer, who helped with prompting and props.

To me, being a sophomore is pretty cool. We no longer are the babies and don't have to look up to everyone else in the building. Now we are the ones who set the examples and let the underclassmen follow us. I guess the two biggest things going are class rings and driver's licenses. It seems as if everyone has grown to be an adult. We do more things now and everybody works together for the first time - and yet - next year I'm sure some of the class will go to the J.V.S. The sophomore year is kind of sad; we know there are only two years of school left for us as a class, and although we'll probably still get together some, most of us will go our own ways. Jeff Wren

I guess I like the 9th grade because you can participate in annual staff, basketball, art club, and other things. We are finally in high school. You can now think, "only four more years!" When you are in the 9th grade you can be in pep band, be a statistician and can go to the ball games on the bus. In the 9th grade, everybody else treats you like you're someone; that means something to me. I guess that's why I like the 9th grade. Kelly Morris

The 8th Grade is O.K. I like Jr. High better now since the high school is upstairs, although I don't like the way some of our classes are run. We can go to our lockers only twice a day! I don't like to carry all those books! One thing I do like is that our gym period is split so that we don't have the boys. It is a lot different from _____ year, but I like it.

The 8th grade is not as exciting as the 7th grade and I don't think it will be as exciting as the 9th. It is kind of an in between class. The good thing about the 8th grade is that we are ahead of the 7th grade. I really like the people in my class and I like being with them. This year's teachers are probably the best we have ever had. They like to laugh and have fun and yet we learn a lot from them.

7th grade means being the nintu of the high school and junior high. It means funky and fantastic fun and hard work. It means not getting the living daylight's beat out of you by the upperclassmen. It means ornery schemes, and talking but not getting caught. It means getting your homework done, especially in Mr. Pirman's class. It means doing your best and it means writing essays like this one. It means trying not to be rats that everybody hates. It means watching Mr. Russell drop his chalk, then hearing the thundering applause. It means helping each other out when an upperclassman picks on one of us. It means laughter and a lot of work: you just hope in Mr. Harmon's class that he doesn't make you feel like a jerk. It means going into Mr. Lacher's class and knowing that someone has pulled the stool that you are about to sit on clear up so that when you sit on it, it will crash downward. It means not getting lost your first day. It means having a friend in the upperclassmen. Nathan Gast

I like School because I get educated so I can be somebody when I grow up. I meet a lot of different kids. In gym we learn how to play basketball, volleyball, soccer and gymnastics. Gym helps us to get ready for girl's basketball and volleyball, in the high school. In 6th grade we can work in the cafeteria. At holidays we decorate rooms and have parties. There are after school activities for girls and boys. There are assemblies and basketball games to go to. Shelly Coleman

School is a place to learn about subjects I don't know about. I like all subjects, even though some are not as easy as others to learn. I like to study, but I think there is a time to play. Learning is very important as we are taught to co-operate and share with others. School teaches us to become useful in different ways. It prepares us for our adult years. We all need school to live a useful life. David Schindal

Third grade this year has been a lot of fun. We started cursive writing and are also learning our multiplication facts. This is hard work but kind of fun too!

We celebrated Children's Book Week by doing extra reading and making puzzles.

At Christmas time we invited our parents to our 3rd grade Christmas Program where we sang carols and ate cookies.

In second grade we learn to add and subtract, carry and borrow. In language, we learn to write correct sentences, and write letters. We also learn about the Pilgrims and Indians - and even present a play about the First Thanksgiving. Not only for Book Fair Week, but every week we read more books. Our favorites are CAT IN THE HAT and Dr. Seuss stories.

In first grade math, the children must memorize addition and subtraction facts. They are excited at beginning to read. Each week the children increase their word knowledge by memorizing the spelling words. They learn to print neatly. These are some of the areas in which children work while in the first grade.

Donnie Sosby led the scoring with the highest point average, Mike Wildermuth had a free throw percentage of 64%, and Bruce Metz had the highest number of rebounds with 97.

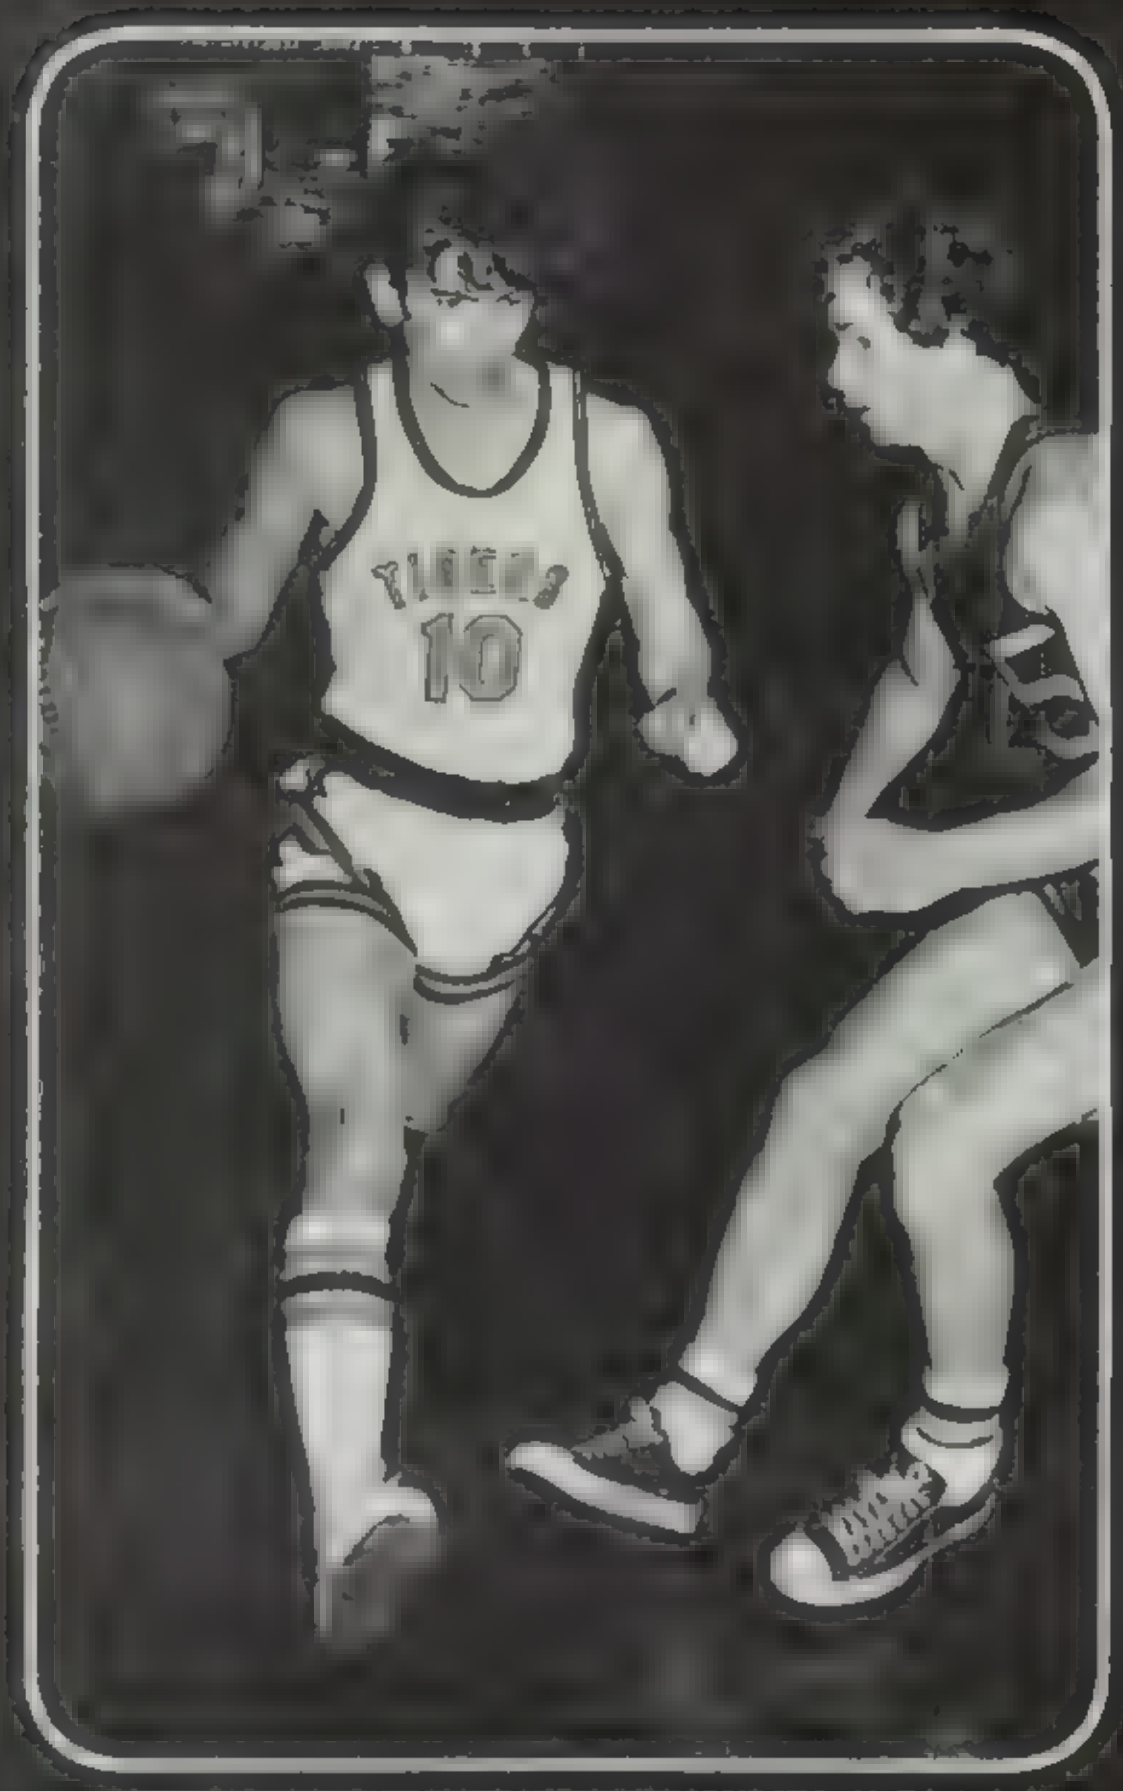

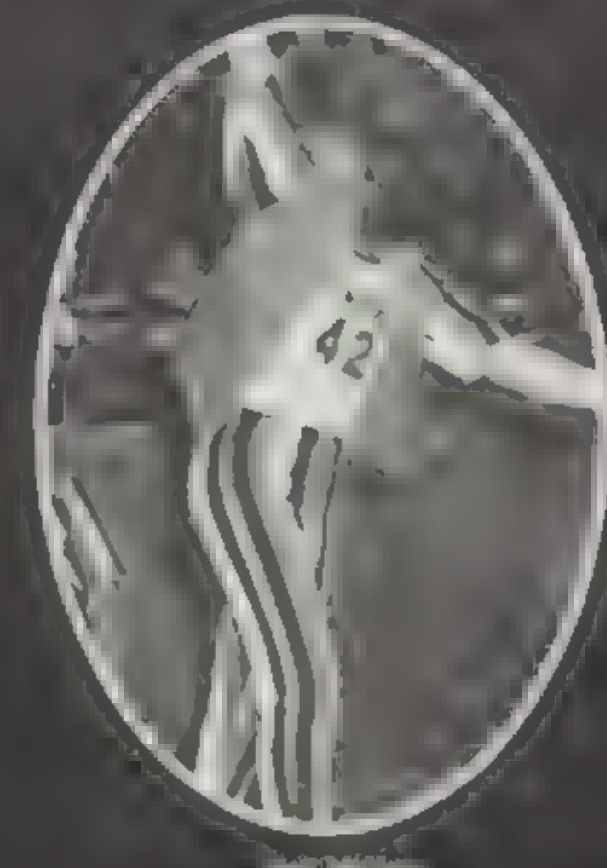

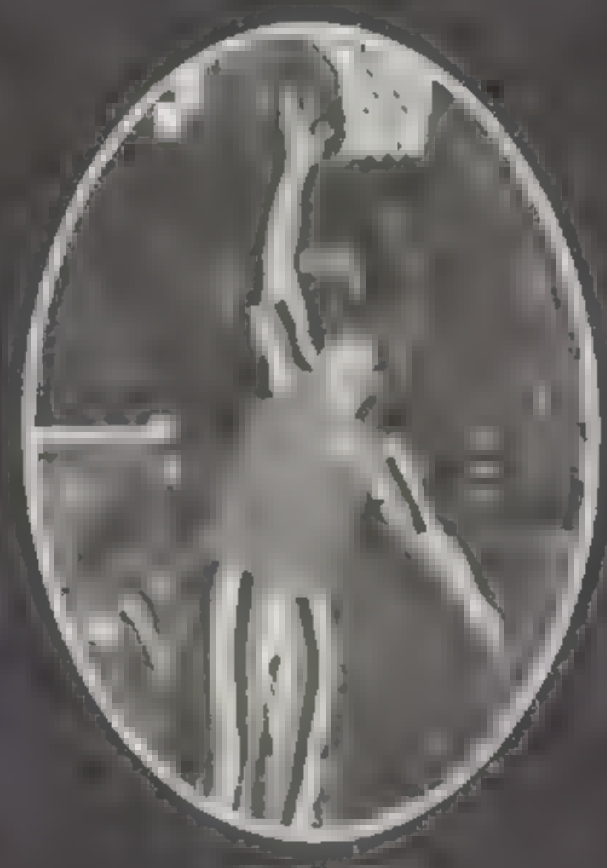

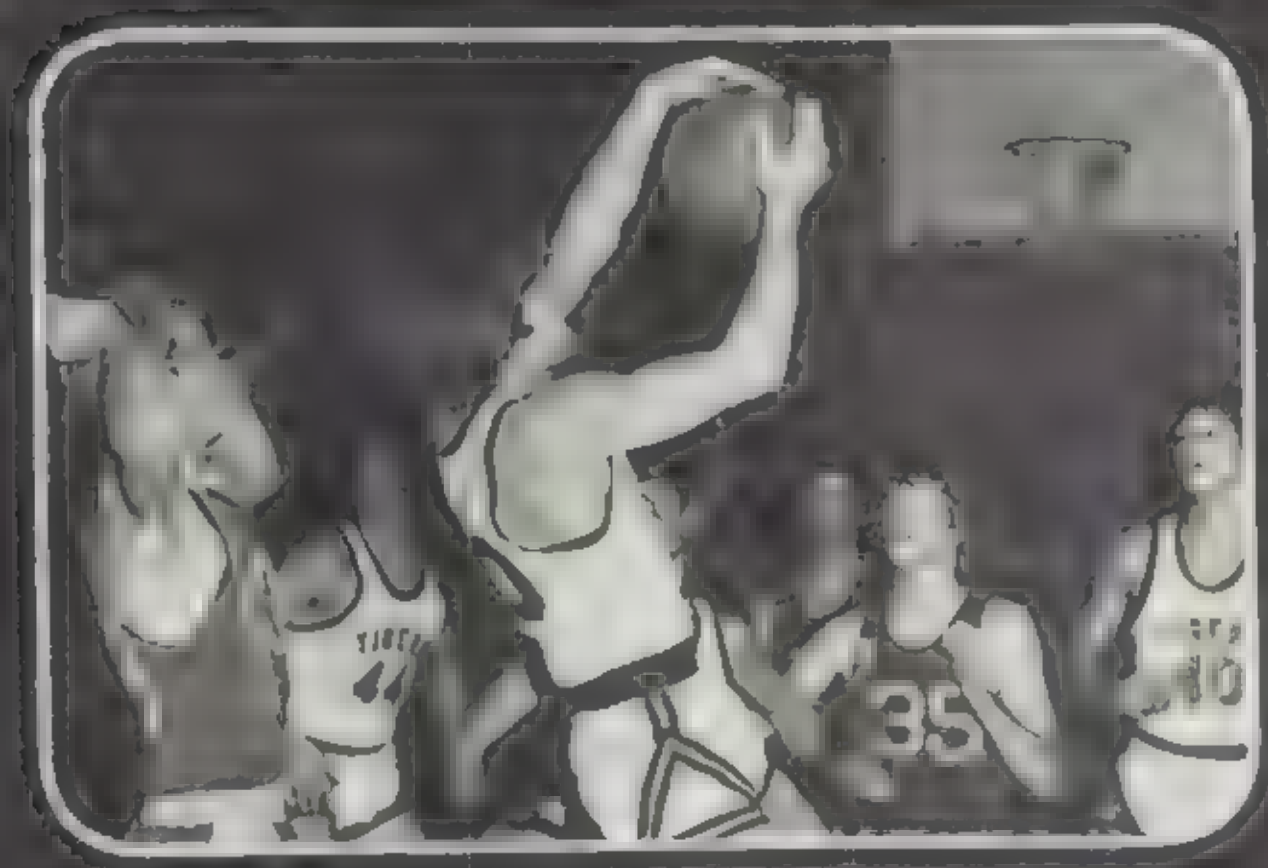

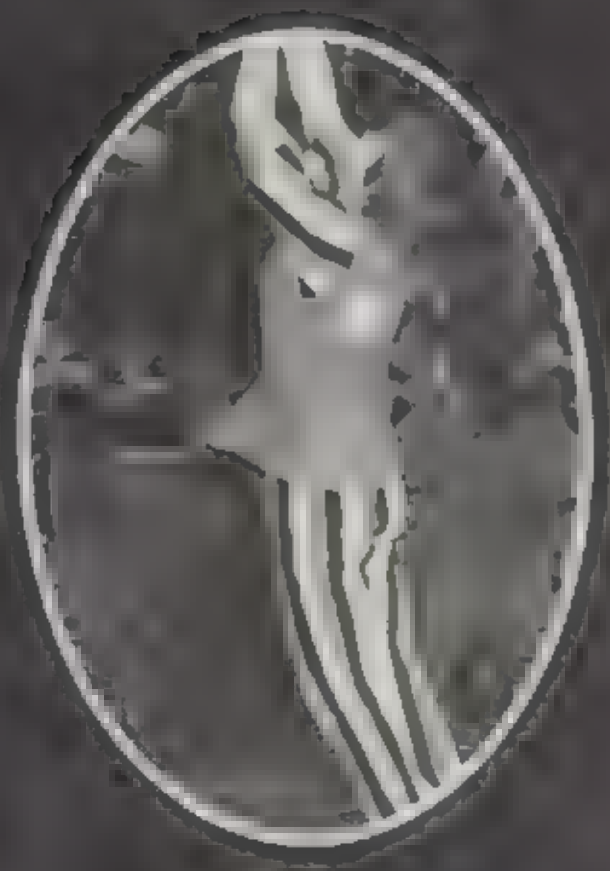

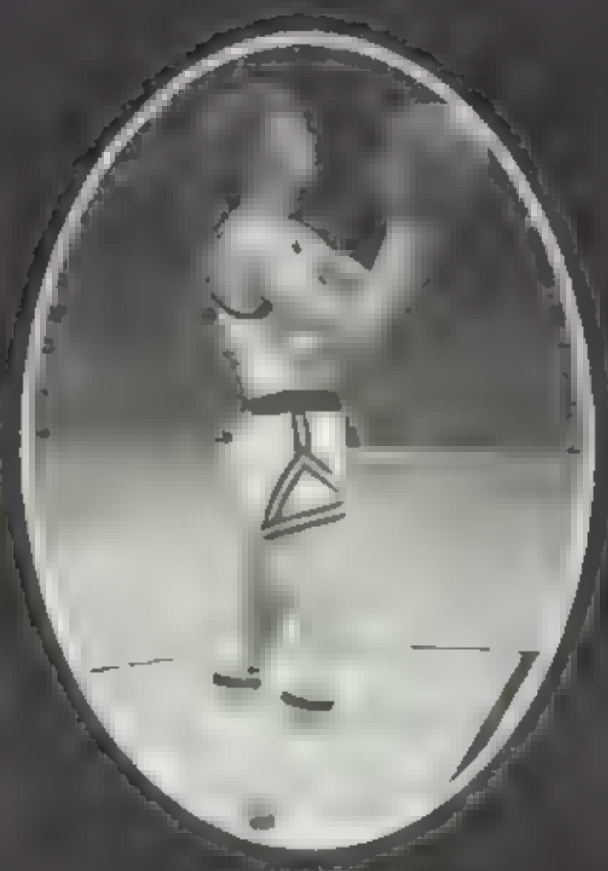

Our Varsity Basketball team was successfully coached by Mr. Jerry Harmon, a first-year coach at Jackson Center High School. Tom Bodenmiller and Kreg Huffer acted as co-captains of the varsity basketball team.

JACKSON CENTER BAND

The band had an active year-round schedule. During the summer, it participated in various parades, including the Memorial Day parade, the Jackson Center Bicentennial parade and the Sherry Co. Fair. In October, we found the band marching at the Democrat Festival and the traditional Peoples Festival. In December, the band presented the annual Christmas Play at the school. In February, the band gave a great performance during the Homecoming Festival and then presented the annual Afternoon With the Arts performance in May.

The Majorettes finished with the best of all the groups and were presented a special trophy for their performance. They were, however, not the only group who were awarded the highest award for their performance.

The Art Club planned and put up the art exhibit which consisted of work from grades 7 - 12. Art students also demonstrated various skills.

The music was provided by members of the Band and Chorus. The highlight of the program was the Band's rendition of "The Hustle."

CHANGES IN THE COURTROOM

Less than a year later, we had several teachers in new rooms as a result of the plan to separate the junior high from the high school. When the office moved to its first floor room, Mr. Henke's vacated office became the new paper & publication office. I learned the office name was The Hub. The old library room was a new storage area for books and became the new art room. Six new faces at the high school at three foreign exchange students and a new teacher, Mr. Parnan.

J.V.S. STUDENTS

Centrally located in Piqua, the Upper Valley Joint Vocational School has been serving numerous area schools for the past two years. Offering a curriculum ranging in variety from cosmetology to brick masonry to computer programming, the school permits the student to gain practical experience in his chosen field of work and prepares him to step into jobs after graduation without the need of further education. J.V.S. students remain a part of their home school class and are encouraged to participate in home school activities as well as J.V.S. activities.

Graduate - [Name]

Graduation - The golden reward resting at the end of a multi-color rainbow spanning 13 years! Commencement is the highlight of the school year and the 1977 graduates worked extra hard to make theirs a unique experience. Light blue and dark blue gowns replaced the traditional black and white. Under the direction of Mrs. Sallor and accompaniment of Mr. Pfadt, the class presented four songs including the class song written to the melody of "Weekend in New England." Several student speakers replaced the usual guest speaker and Revellady delivered the invocation and the benediction. Student addresses were given by the Valedictorian Lori Meeker and Co-Salutatorians Kim Gorsuch and Marilyn Helntz.

For the season, classes officially closed May 30, 1971. The juniors took over the vacated seats of authority, and the entire student body joyously awaited the completion of exams and the May 31st release into summer. Teachers and administrators too were ready for a vacation!

THE VERDICT

"Pretty good, huh?"

hectic and jubilant affair! Lockers must be cleaned, books returned,
 papers must be handed in and exams teachers and students alike hasten to silent and lonely for the summer.

IS... "GUILTY!"

[Go'cha]

We the Annual Staff find the Student Body of Jackson Center High School "Guilty" on three counts: 1. Guilty of scholastic achievement above and beyond the call of duty. 2. Guilty of athletic endeavor heroic and extraordinary. 3. Guilty of artistic creativity both dramatic and exceptional. All three counts have garnered honor and recognition on our school. We are proud of you on your fine performance.
